

Cruising is becoming a more popular way for dialysis users to travel around the world and there are now a few companies offering this service.

You may find that you need approval from the medical director of the ship before you travel and of course, take out special travel insurance.

Also the dialysis will be most likely operated on a private basis and the EHIC form is likely not to be accepted - so it could be an expensive option.

Some of the operators include

- Dialysis while cruising
- Dialysis holidays
- Dialysis cruises
- Dialysis at sea
- Freedom apartments

We are able to put you in touch with a provider most likely to meet your needs. For more information please email cruises@globaldialysis.com

Happy sailing!
